“Go,” the Missionary's Call

By Nathan D. Pietsch

In the month of March, I shared a Bible teaching from Hebrews 11:8. This verse speaks about how Abraham obeyed God when he was called to go to a new land. Abraham left his home country not knowing where he was going. Abraham's faith and obedience pleased the Lord greatly.

Recently, I have heard of numerous people desiring to go onto the mission field to serve the Lord in a greater capacity. This is wonderful to hear, and a response to Jesus' words spoken in Mark 16:15. Jesus commanded, "Go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

As a missionary for the past 14.5 years, Dawn and I have experienced first hand the joy of watching God move. We have seen many salvations, physical and emotional healings, and deliverances. God has moved us all over the United States and globally. The Lord has had us intercept people in route to commit suicide, murder, and horrific sins.

Being sent out by the Lord has not always been easy. We had to live in our car for about three months total. We did street ministry in horrible weather. We preached to the multitudes in hostile crowds. I was punched in the face and headbutted in the chest. We traveled across the nation with no money or connections. Despite the difficulties and major sacrifices, it has been the joy of life to follow the Lord.
